To access, just go to the NorFalco public website "www.norfalco.com", click on the "On-Line Training" menu header and go from there!

NorFalco is pleased to announce the launch of an on-line training system!

This new capability enables quick, easy, low cost access to safety, emergency response and technical information on sulfuric acid... part of delivering more than H₂SO₄.

Access is free-of-charge and available to NorFalco customers, carriers and service suppliers, first responders (police, ambulance, fire departments) and other stakeholders in the safe distribution of sulfuric acid.

The information available provides key benefits including free access to regulatory compliance information/training, accident prevention tips and methods to avoid production disruptions and equipment failures.

Many users, both external and internal to NorFalco, have already accessed the system, with positive results and feedback.

The training information is presented in easy-to-digest videos and slides with voice narration and the occasional quiz to keep participants involved. Training certificates can be printed following each module to keep as proof of completion.
